Wednesday was a gala day in Kinsella when the local branch of the Legion held their annual sports. The weather was ideal, and a very large crowd attended. Gayland's midway was a special attraction for the children and even the grown-up male children were seen riding the horses on the merry-go-round with cones in their hands. A well stocked booth supplied refreshments for all. A free scramble for nuts and candy was given the children. A picture show was held, followed by a display of fireworks at night. A well attended dance ended the day's festivities. We wish to give a rousing cheer to the Legion for a very enjoyable and well organized day.

The Legion wish to thank all patrons and anyone who helped in any way to make the day such a success.

Mrs. S. Ratke and daughter and Mr. L. Horinek of Edmonton have been visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Horinek.

Miss Alice Tomlinson is spending some of her holidays with Mrs. Chase and Marjorie of Irma.

Mrs. Floyd Bronson underwent an operation in the Hardisty hospital. We all wish her the very best.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Bell of Hardisty are back on their farm for harvesting.

The folks of the district will be glad to hear that Jim Hearn is back home from the Royal Alex hospital and is doing fine. It is also nice to know that it wasn't cancer.

Bank of Montreal Crop Report

ALBERTA—Warm weather and heavy rains in East-central areas, varying to showers in other districts, brought rapid growth and moisture to crops. The central and southern districts are in good shape. The south-western and south-central areas the moisture came too late to benefit crops materially, but has improved feed grains and pasture somewhat. Fall and insect damage is slight.

SASKATCHEWAN—Good rains have maintained present satisfactory prospects in the northern, eastern and, to some extent, the central districts. In the drier south-western and south-central areas the moisture came too late to benefit crops materially, but has improved feed grains and pasture somewhat. Fall and insect damage is slight.

MANITOBA—Satisfactory conditions continue and a good average wheat out-turn is indicated. Harvesting of coarse grains is becoming general in the southern half of the Province. Haying is virtually completed. Root crops are promising. Due to a light clover crop, honey production is likely to be slightly below normal.

726 ENTRIES IN BARLEY CONTEST

Despite handicap of drought and other factors which in areas barred normal crops, at least 726 farmers in the three prairie provinces have entered the National Barley Contest for 1949.

Figures released August 3 by the Barley Improvement Institute give 244 entries in Manitoba, 332 in Saskatchewan, and 150 in Alberta. Additions are probable when the final figures are compiled by the provincial committees.

In Manitoba the number of entries is slightly below last year, and in Alberta the decrease is considerable. An unusually dry June in the north and north central malting barley areas of Alberta severely damaged the crop in districts which normally would have produced the biggest number of entries.

This year there is only one competition. Last year there were two. The 1949 competition is exclusively for producers of malting barley in commercial quantities and calls for a carload entry of a minimum 1,000 bushels.

In Saskatchewan the entries are more than last year. Although the southwest of the province was hard hit by drought, the barley area in the northwest has had ample rains and generally the barley crop is good.

Weed Inspection

Most of the Weed Inspectors have covered their districts the first time and some have been over it the second time. At the agricultural Survey Board meeting held last Saturday, August 6th, it was reported that the inspection was being received from a number of farmers as to cutting weeds where the infestations were considered serious. It was the unanimous decision of the meeting that the weed inspectors prepare a list of farmers who are not co-operating, and that these farms be recommended for a "Stop-Seeding notice" for 1950, and until such time as the Board feels the weeds are under satisfactory control. A little more co-operation now may save you a lot of embarrassment in the end. The Board is now prepared to take full steps to reduce the weed problem to a minimum.

Roadsides

The roadsides in the M.D. of Wainwright are getting in very bad condition and the farmers don't seem to be doing a great deal to improve the situation. According to the Noxious Weeds Act of Alberta, the farmer or occupant of the land is responsible for his side of the road up to the centre line of the road. It is an utter impossibility to clean your field as long as you are going to continue to let the weeds grow in the ditches.

Summerfallow

I notice a number of summerfallows getting in very bad shape. Harvest is just around the corner, and then most farmers are going to be too busy to work their summerfallow as they would like to. If this is the case I would like to suggest that you seed the weediest portions to Fall Rye at the earliest date. Fall Rye can be seeded any time from now on, and the earlier the better. Spraying the summerfallow with 2,4-D early in harvest may be a saving, that is, let the 2,4-D take the place of cultivation that you can't find time to do at the right time. A heavy concentration will be required.

Mr. Matt Lockhart of Vancouver has recently visited at the home of his brother and family, Mr. W. R. Lockhart. Also visiting with them for a while was their daughter Mrs. H. Wadly, Betty and Ronnie from Edson. Last week-end Miss Hazel Lockhart, Mr. Floyd Lockhart and Jimmie McLaren motored down from Edmonton to visit at their parents.

Fear Of World Famine

THERE ARE A NUMBER OF ASPECTS to the problem created by the dwindling of world food supplies on one hand, and the constant increase in population on the other. Erosion and deterioration of the soil are considered to be the basic causes of decreasing food production and are looked upon as the most serious menace to agriculture in the years to come. There is much concern over this problem and efforts are being made to combat the gradual decrease in the acreage of productive land throughout the world. The population is now increasing at the rate of over twenty million people a year, or about 54,000 a day, and it is expected that the present population will be doubled in twenty-five years. In view of these figures it is clear that even if present rates of production were maintained there would be insufficient food supplies to meet the future needs of the population.

Other Methods Less Practical

Experts on this subject are agreed that even although efforts to combat erosion and other factors which cut down the productivity of the soil may be successful, additional measures will be necessary if fair levels of nutrition are to be maintained throughout the world. A number of possibilities have been considered in this connection. It has been suggested that food might be produced in chemical solutions, independently of the soil, but although this has proved successful on a moderate scale, scientists are doubtful of its value as a means of replacing soil for growing foodstuffs. It has also been suggested that food might be produced from the sea, but again scientists doubt the practical value on a scale sufficiently large to be of value. One method which is already being used but which also has its limitations, is that of bringing new land under cultivation. In Africa, South America and other less heavily populated places, much new land has been successfully brought under cultivation in recent years.

Yearly Waste Is Very Great

One aspect of the problem which is not often discussed is that of the annual waste of food products. It is not uncommon for people from lands where food is less plentiful than it is on this continent, to be appalled at the waste in homes, institutions and stores here. On a much larger scale, however, is the loss due to pests, rodents and mites. Figures gathered by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations have shown that 65,000,000 tons of grain are destroyed each year by these means. If this waste were eliminated a great deal more food would be available and it would appear that if this, and the erosion and deterioration of the soil could be brought under control, a large part at least of the threat to world famine could be removed.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"Whenever my wife needs money, she calls me handsome."

"Handsome?"

"Yeah—handsome over!"

Maid—"I'm very sorry, Miss Brown said to tell you she is not at home."

Mrs. Cayenne—"That's all right. Just tell her I'm glad I didn't come."

Mr. New-wed—"Darling, what's wrong with this cake you baked? It tastes gritty."

Mrs. New-wed—"It's probably the shells. The recipe called for three whole."

Irate Guest—"Look here, the rain is simply pouring through the roof of my bedroom."

Summer Hotel Proprietor—"Absolutely according to our prospectus, sir. Running water in every room."

Customer—"I'll have some raw oysters, not too large nor too small, not too salty nor too fat. They must be cold and I want them quickly!"

Waiter—"Yes, sir. With or without pearls?"

Jones—"Good evening, old man. Thought I'd drop in and see you about the money you borrowed from me last week."

Brown—"I'm sorry, but I lent it to a friend of mine. Were you wanting it?"

Jones—"Well, not for myself, but the fellow I borrowed it from says the owner wants it."

As the train pulled into the station, the porter knocked on a compartment door.

"Chicago," he announced. "Shall I brush you off, madam?"

"Certainly not," she replied icily. "I'll descend in the usual way."

The Ruridical Conference was at lunch, and a discussion had arisen as to the duties of the lady in country parishes.

"The activities of the laywomen," said an authoritative voice, "must be definitely organized."

"What is a laywoman, precisely?" someone asked.

The Rural Dean's 13-year-old daughter broke a long silence: "A hen!"

A puzzled small girl watched a party of anglers putting off in their punt.

"But, Mummy," she asked, "do the fishes like all that beer?"

"So you really think your memory is improving under treatment. You remember things now?"

"Well, not exactly, but I have progressed so far that I can frequently remember that I have forgotten something, if I could only remember what it is."

In a discussion on women's styles in an American quiz show, an elderly man was one of the contestants. He was asked: "I suppose you are old enough to remember wasp waists?"

"Remember 'em," he exclaimed bitterly. "That's when I got stung."

Scientists Want To Make Potato More Nutritional

OTTAWA—An experiment on potatoes now being carried out in eastern Canada, with higher nutritional value as its aim, will make its effects felt throughout the country if the researchers get the answers they are looking for.

At three eastern universities—Montreal, McGill and McDonald College—scientists are now, among other things, trying to find out how to increase the thiamin content of this most widely eaten of all vegetables.

Thiamin or vitamin B1 is the famous "morale vitamin" of the war, with a beneficial effect on the nervous system. Its absence causes neuritis and stomach disorders.

Chief sources of the vitamin are meats, particularly pork, and cereals, notably the wheat germ.

Next to beans, potatoes have more of it than any other vegetable, although they are not particularly rich in thiamin. But the point of the current research is that any improvement in the nutritional value of farm products would be a big gain.

Nutrition experts of the health department point out that as thiamin is soluble in water, a certain amount is lost in cooking. This loss can be held down to perhaps 10 per cent, through using a minimum amount of water and not boiling too long. Otherwise it may run to 50 per cent.

Woman Holds Secret For Miracle Roses

VICTORIA, B.C.—"Miracle" roses have been blooming for over a year in the home of Mrs. F. F. Wenman, here.

Visitors who called at the house have stood in awe to look at cut roses which have retained their freshness and color for 12 months.

Mrs. Wenman disclosed that the phenomenon was no "miracle", but a knack of treating flowers which she discovered some years ago.

She said she believed she had discovered a method of preserving cut flowers for an indefinite period.

"I've been working on the process for five years," she said. "I think I have succeeded. I'm now attempting to find a way of speeding up the process."

"I think there will be a day when people will buy flowers which will last indefinitely."

Mrs. Wenman refused to divulge how it is done. "This is a secret which for the time I'm keeping to myself," she said.

Atoms have been talked about since pre-Socratic times.

Butter Surplus Not Abnormal

REGINA.—Rt. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Agriculture Minister, said there is no need for anyone to try to find an outlet for the butter surplus the Canadian government is currently building up.

Mr. Gardiner said in an interview there is nothing abnormal in such surpluses. Reserves now accumulating were needed to carry Canada through its annual low-production period.

The Federal Agriculture Minister was commenting on a report that Government experts were trying to find an outlet for a steadily increasing accumulation of butter that was expected to reach 60,000,000 pounds by September.

"We produce about 40 per cent more butter in the summer than we consume and every pound must be stored if we are going to be able to supply our market from December until April when we are producing only about half the butter we consume."

"If we do reach 60,000,000 pounds storage, we will only have a normal supply."

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

ACCIDENTAL DEATH

He Asked For It And Planned An Accident.

By KERRY WOOD

"I'M KILLING you now, Hartley!" whispered Snider, and he pressed the trigger.

Hartley walked slowly down the mountainside. Ben Hartley, of Hartley and Snider, the city's best brokerage team. School chums, they'd joined forces in leaving college.

"I'm two dollars richer than you," Hartley chuckled as they counted their total initial assets.

"That makes you the senior partner," Snider grinned. "We'll make it: Hartley and Snider."

It had been a struggle at first, but Hartley was a go-getter with people and Snider was careful. Hartley called his lean partner Ben the Brain, while Snider jabbed Ben's paunch and hailed him as The Front.

"We're getting along, but I'm against joining this country club," protested Snider. "We can't afford it."

"Come on, miser," Hartley boomed. "It's got prestige and people in golf. They met Marion at the club, becoming friendly rivals at once. Three fun-packed weeks later, she made her choice. Snider shook Ben's hand in congratulation and Marion gave him a kiss.

"The first boy gets named after you, chum," Hartley said. "You'll be the rich uncle."

"Sure," nodded Snider, "and you may not be fooling—if you quit plunging."

Ben's plunging turned out well and they were on main street. Curiously, it was Hartley who became cautious on a deal that Snider favored.

"It's the big chance," Snider declared.

"Too risky," Ben vetoed. Snider privately cursed Ben's stubborn streak and, convinced of a golden opportunity, plunged with his own resources. He "borrowed" from the firm to recoup, losing that money too.

In panic, he confessed to Ben. "Well—" Hartley was suddenly grave. "It's not playing fair—Ah, forget it! I'll write you a cheque on my own account and we'll see it through together."

The thin partner managed a smile of gratitude, but that's when he began to hate Hartley. His chance came when Hartley got a letter from a mutual friend who'd become, of all things, a forest ranger. Tubby Jensen wrote a glowing account of his outdoor life.

"Let's go for a he-man holiday," Hartley boomed. "Let's go hunting!" Snider agreed, and they went boisterously out to buy the gear that city sportsmen need to shoot a deer or whatever it was Jensen could show them. Tubby howled when he saw the array. "Greenhorns! Ten deer with binoculars! You guys have enough junk to outfit an expedition."

"Look, Tubby," Snider showed his rifle. "I got a 30.06 calibre, while Ben bought a .270. Which is best?"

"They're both okay," Tubby said. The thin man smiled; choosing a different calibre had been his own secret idea, and Jensen played further into his hand: "I must pack grub up to the look-out man on the west mountain. While I'm gone, you fool around. You may get a moose—they're on the move. Day after tomorrow, I'll show you some sheep hunting that's hunting!"

Snider was now decided. Hunting accidents are commonplace; besides, everyone knew that Hartley was a careless sort and inexperienced. So they said good-bye to Tubby and set out. When they were three miles from the cabin, a black shape loomed out of the bush—Hartley and Snider. Hartley swung up his rifle and fired. Miraculously, the animal went down.

"Got him!" he yelled. "A bull moose!"

He dropped his rifle and whipped out a knife, remembering what he'd read in magazines about bleeding the kill. He raced forward. Behind his back, Snider's gloved hands picked up Hartley's rifle, ejected the empty and rammed the bolt down on a live cartridge.

"Hartley!" he called. His partner looked up from his bloody task. His happy triumph drained.

"I've hated you for a long time, Hartley. You took Marion from me, and you've played the high and mighty all these years with your crazy luck. Now I'm settling the score. It's murder—but no one else will know! I'll explain how you cocked your gun for a second shot, then stumbled."

"Snider!"

"I'm killing you now, Hartley!" whispered Snider, and he pressed the trigger.

"I've always been a careless sort," Ben told Jensen that evening. "I must have chickened that gun down without thinking. When Snider pointed it, I saw the muzzle was plugged with mud."

"That'll always make a heavy rifle blow up," Tubby nodded. "Well, he asked for it. He planned an accident, and that barrel explosion sure gave him one—hor' keepl!"

Co-operative Farming

Following a meeting of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool in Regina in 1944, a small group of farmers decided to try co-operative farming. They had little to go on, and even a sympathetic provincial government could not be of very much use to these pioneers.

Six members took the plunge and incorporated the Sturgis Farm Co-operative Association Limited on April 4, 1945. Their first year was full of work but the Sturgis Co-operative is now an unqualified success.
